

Programs for Retired Police Officers

Ms JOHNSTON question to MINISTER for POLICE, FIRE and EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

My question is from a concerned constituent in Glenorchy. He is concerned, in particular, around the pilot wellbeing program that is meant to be for retired police officers as a 12-month trial. He says there appears to be no action on this trial and seeks an explanation from the Minister as to why that is. He's also aware that RPAT - the Retired Police Association of Tasmania - wrote to the Minister on 1 April, referring to more effective and cheaper ways put forward to provide this service to retired police officers, but they're yet to receive a response. Minister, can you please indicate when you'll be responding back to RPAT and any updates on the implementation of this trial? Our police officers and retired police officers deserve nothing but the best.
